How do you determine if the citation you are trying to locate is a book or an article?

BOOK:
Below is an example of a book citation from the bibliography on the War of 1812.

Books usually have a place of publication (New York), a publisher (Greenwood) and a date of publication (2002).

ARTICLE:
Now let’s look at a citation for an article. This is from the bibliography on Columbine.

Notice the differences. There is a volume number (60) and specific pages for the article. This article was obtained from the database Academic Search Premier. For a list of databases, go to "Databases by Title" on the library homepage (under Research Tools).
How to

The Full-Text may be available through any of these resources.

Title: Differences in visual perception of age and attractiveness of female facial and body skin.

- Full Text in Wiley Online Library
  Available from 1997 volume: 19 issue:1

- Full Text in OCLC FirstSearch Electronic Collections Online
  Available from 1997 volume: 19 issue:1 until 2009 volume: 31

- SELECTED Full Text in EBSCOhost Academic Search Premier
  Available from 2000
  Most recent 1 year(s) not available

- Check for Print: State University System of Florida Libraries Union Catalog

- Check for print: USF Libraries Catalog

- Check for Print in Libraries worldwide: WorldCat

Users interested in this article also expressed an interest in the following: (TRIAL ACCESS FOR 30 DAYS; EXPIRES ON DEC. 15, 2010)

View More... Select All Clear All Save Citations Select Format

HINT: Start with the first one listed for the best chance of success

HINT: Check out the suggested articles for more article ideas